The time of your life...

The bright smile
of youth,
the thrill of being
alive and young.
Discovering
something new,
different, challenging
the end of
“the simple life.”

What can I

Competition, victory, sportsmanship

We reflect upon the past years—
our dreams, our goals.
Where did the time go—where are we going?

...reflect on years

Discover our world...find ourselves... in reflections...

Bitter cold and crisp,
chilling atmosphere.
Warmth of flickering candlelight cast upon
two faces beside it.
Discover emotions, find feeling, in reflections.
Deep purple to pale lilac.
Bright crimson to

"Ideas won't keep. . .

Something must be done about them."

—Alfred North Whitehead

1969 — A year to discover:

1969—a year for young people to discover —discover the world about them
—discover themselves—their identity, their potential
—discover how these all relate to their life in Christ.

With the tremendous advances in all fields of knowledge, with the critical issues rising to contrast our society, with the great challenges facing the Church today, never was there more pressing need for youth to be discoverers.

At CLHS we are convinced that the key to all this new discovering is to be found in a rediscovery of God's revelation to us—recorded in God's Book, lived through His people, personified in His Son. To know Him and find Him the trustworthy guide for all your life is the most important discovery you can make.

Mr. Carl Gallmeier, sophomore advisor, gives Sheila Taylor the benefit of his long experience as a guidance counselor.

“Know thyself” is aim of Guidance program

“Know thyself” was a famous quotation made by the Greek philosopher Socrates. This would be an accurate appraisal of many of the objectives of the Guidance Program at Concordia. Discovery of yourself is basic in pursuing your education, career, and future life. The role of the counselor is to continually assist students to discover and to keep open the doors of opportunity and promise. Inner discovery of your God-given talents will lead you through life. So seek to “know thyself.”

Mr. Glenn Parrish helps Jack solve a problem of high school life.

Shelley Bartels receives college information from Mr. Guenther Herzog, who provides the seniors with vital data concerning college entrance requirements.

Pastor Beckmann gives counseling advice to Dave Butts.

School management in very capable hands

The efficiency of operations at Concordia is partly credited to the custodians, office staff, and cafeteria staff. How could a student survive if he didn't have a custodian ready to find a lost book, a delicious meal from the cafeteria, or the office reminding him of appointments? To them a big thanks!

The office ladies: seated, Mrs. Wiegman, left to right, Mrs. Masenthin, Mrs. Roemke, Mrs. Breining.

Mr. Howard's church history students are very alert as he lectures them about the Reformation and Martin Luther.

The center of Concordia's activities is based on God and our religion

Religion at Concordia is the center of everything, from a basketball game to a Tuesday or Thursday chapel service. We benefit so much by the ideas put to us so explicitly by Mr. Westrick, Mr. Buetow, Mr. Howard, Mr. Graves, Mr. Weiss, or Pastor Beckman. Let's hope that we learn to take advantage of the opportunities we find in our religion classes and thus make religion beneficial and full of meaning for Concordia students.

Mr. Westrick seriously explains to puzzled seniors an important idea concerning religion in their lives in the years to come.

Inexperienced freshmen search the detailed M-1 rifle for all of its "hidden parts". Special emphasis is given to weapons and their use.

Able Junior marksmen try their aim in the rifle range.

Much business must be attended to during the beloved Battalion Hour.

Sometimes perfection is hard to reach and retain. For example, dig those straight rows!

Captain Clendenen and the officers are looked to for guidance and leadership. These are just a sample of the competent men in Military IV this year.

Military: practicing, performing, performing

The established purposes of the military department here at Concordia include the learning of basic military skills and deeper appreciation of the role of the U.S. Army, acquired through "active duty" in Battalion Hour.

Through his training, a Cadet discovers self-reliance and obtains leadership qualities; good citizenship and patriotism then become omnipresent.

The challenge of mathematics

Mathematics is an important facet of any profession. Although it is an often difficult subject, one should not overlook its value. Math is discovering how to think rationally. Mathematics at Concordia not only strives to teach basic skills but challenges the student with greater questions.

The math teachers are: Mr. Lutz, Mr. Gayer, Mrs. Retrum, Miss Lopnow, Mr. Sievert, Mr. Mertins, Mr. Reinking.

Phyllis Schmidt explains a problem to the class in Mr. Gayer's 3rd hour trig. class.

These freshmen are learning the fundamentals of math in Mr. Sievert's General Math class.

"Watch it, Juniors! All play and no work and you'll never pass Mr. Lutz's Algebra II class!"

Mark Burger is carefully preparing an experiment for Mr. Anderson's Advanced Chemistry class.

This is Mr. Lutz's Applied Science class. It is an overview of science for those students who will terminate formal education with high school.

This year the Biology classes had a visitor named Gwen, a guinea pig, contributed by Susan Fahlsing.

The science teachers are: Mr. Lutz, Mr. Gayer, Mr. Anderson, Miss Lopmow, Mr. Mertins, and Mr. Baack.

Science at Concordia emphasizes discovery

Science is life and everything affecting that life. Science is a greater understanding of ourselves and the world around us. We learn how and why. Concordia teaches the science student to discover facts he has never known before.

Mrs. Haller's Honors English class strives to broaden their knowledge of literature through concentrated study of several college textbooks.

Several members of Mr. Graves' speech class discuss the outline which Larry Hoyle plans to use in his upcoming speech.

Mr. Jordan guides English teachers as well as scholarly seniors through the maze of English!

English teachers enliven literature

Concordia students learn more than simple grammar rules in English class. New literary ideas are examined and evaluated; composition techniques are studied and practiced. Vocabulary lists open doors to more precise writing and speaking. Developmental Reading is designed to increase speed and expand comprehension. In Speech nervous students become poised speakers through practice.

Developmental reading isn't all speed. There are quiet moments of thoughtful contemplation—during a test for instance.

Our library received a face-lift this year when it was completely rearranged to provide one area for study and another section for research and reference purposes. Student workers again aided Mr. Pasche and Mrs. Sauerteig with the routine duties of keeping a library running smoothly.

The bookstore has everything the well-equipped scholar needs. Paperback classics and dictionaries are available, in addition to pens, paper, rulers, and textbooks to replace that one you mislaid in January.

Library, bookstore invite discovery

"Happy to serve" motto of the bookstore employees.

Pat Reilly browses through one piece of interesting literature the library has to offer.

Mr. Pasche and Mrs. Sauerteig have kept our library in good working order through another one of those hectic years.

Mr. Ramm patiently explains to Bill Bussing, that the party's over.

Mr. Falkenstern's German II class are very alert students.

Go ahead Mr. Ramm, the lines are clear now.

Conjugation and conversation

The study of foreign language gives students a better understanding of people and customs of other countries, as well as a greater knowledge of our own language. The language lab, used by all French and German classes, offers the student a better opportunity to learn, to speak, and listen to a foreign language.

Meanwhile, back in the classrooms, Mr. Falkenstern, our master of Deutsch, Mr. Ramm, our conqueror of the French language, and Mr. Beutow, our wise Roman sage, are quite occupied teaching grammar, vocabulary, and other skills necessary to fully comprehend a foreign language.

Jim Lohman suggests peace in French lab.

Phys. Ed.: essential to discovery of self

Throughout the year, at any moment during the day, one is likely to hear the enthusiastic cheerings and jeerings of the numerous physical education students hard at play on Concordia's gym floor. When tumbling on the trampoline or splashing in the shower, students demonstrate that athletics provide recreation. Serving on the physical education staff this year, directing the boys, are Mr. Jack Nassucci and Mr. Craig Hoffman. The girls are under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth Obermueller, an able new addition.

Mrs. Obermueller coaches several girls in her office.

"Up, up, and away" goes the basketball in a strenuous game in phys ed.

"What are you trying to catch, Frankie?"

"It's a bird, it's a plane, it's a superbubble!!"

In sociology Mr. Pinnow discusses problems in today's society with his students.

"When I'm elected, I promise to. . ."

"Vote Republican all the way!"

Social Studies classes

Let's give a hand of applause for our fine social studies teachers.

"What did I say about Nero that was so funny?"

develop an awareness

"Look at section three, article one of the constitution, which states the qualifications of a U.S. Senator."

Future voters involve themselves in the politics of today in order to make a better tomorrow.

Tracing the Battle of the Bulge and attending a political rally are a part of the social studies program at Concordia. This program, containing a wide variety of courses, deals with the study of mankind through his history, environment, government, and behavior. Mountain ranges, plains, deserts, and cities are plotted on maps in World Geography and in Geography of America. The student is acquainted with the business world through the study of economics. In sociology students learn about society and groups within society. Social studies prepares the Christian who must meet the changing world of tomorrow.

Training in business provides useful skills

In this fast pace world each member of society comes into contact, at one point or another, with a typewriter, an adding machine, or other types of machines related to these. That is why the business program at CLHS is sso helpful and vital to each student. Miss Ross, head of this department, guides the student through such important skills as typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, business math, and the operation of business machines.

Business teachers: Miss Ross, Mr. Parrish, Mr. Goeglein.

Listen! You can hear the wheels turning in the heads of these busy shorthand students as they write.

"Hey, Sue, what are ya gonna call that thing when it's done?"

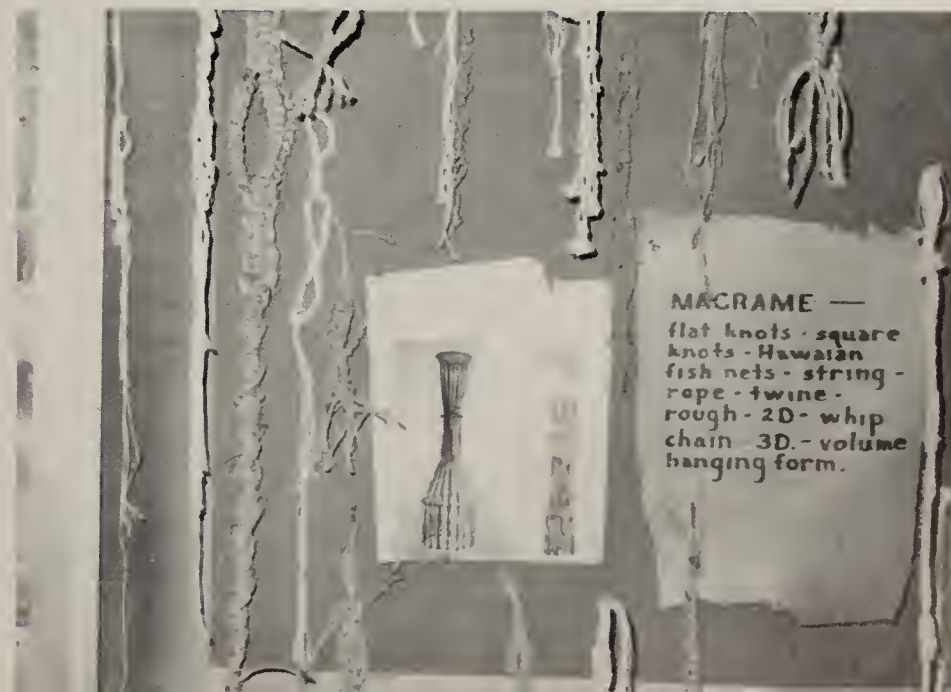

Art involves discovery and expression

With artistic hands, Mr. Grabowski guides Anne Bredemeyer with her plaster of Paris project in one of the art classes.

Discovering one's self and thoughts and putting them into a painting, sculpture, or drawing is all a part of the fascinating world of art. Mr. Grabowski aids the student in the basic skills, and as the pupil proceeds from there, he uses the horizon of his imagination as his boundaries. The student learns to express his ideas and thoughts as he works his way through the basics in Art I to the more advanced art forms in Art IV. Art Appreciation also aids the student in broadening his imaginative and artistic horizons.

The art students display their talent through the form of macrame.

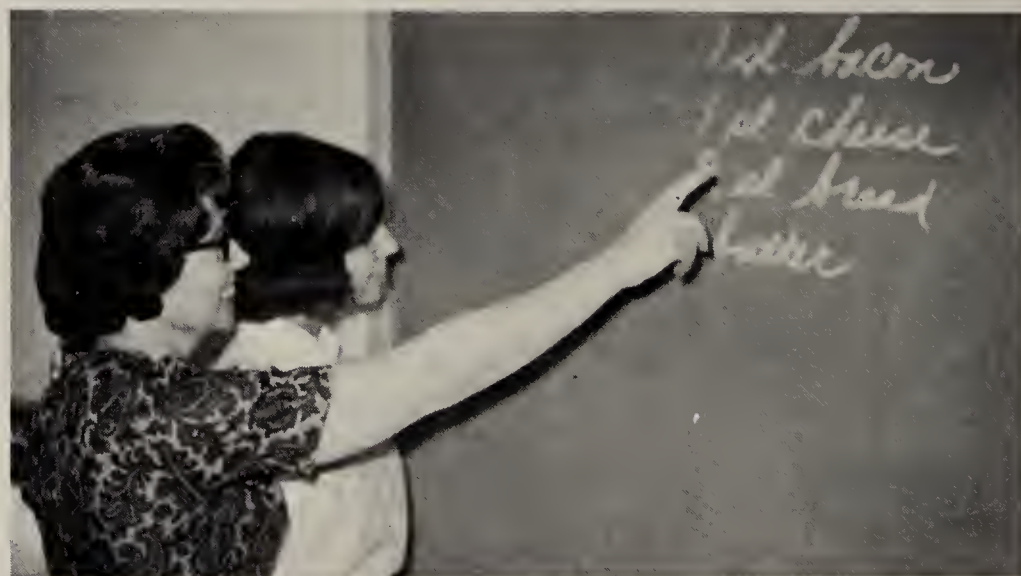

Discovering the world of home life in home ec.

"Oh, no—it's crooked! Mrs. Roop, could you. . ." and Mrs. Roop, home economics teacher, helps solve the dilemma. The students, given ordinary problems, may make mistakes, but it all adds up to a year of discovering and learning skills—nursing, sewing, home decorating, nutrition, child care. These simple discoveries and mistakes are the only ways that the girls can prepare for the life ahead of them—their important future.

It looks like Beth has an idea.

Mrs. Roop spends time with each student individually, too.

"Is my freshman class really studying?" wonders Mrs. Roop.

See, Rhonda, the filling goes between the slices.

A serious Jim Dinkel listens attentively.

When walking past Mr. Panning's shop classes, students at Concordia hear many sounds—talking and whispering, or a drill, a sander, and even a saw. Intermingled with the noise, the student's ideas gradually take form in his work. Before creating their masterpieces, students of the electricity and industrial arts classes must learn wiring, sketching, and representing ideas graphically with blueprints. After that well-planned idea is finally a reality, the proud student smiles briefly, all the while in his mind he plans a new project. But the basics that are learned here, whether easy or hard, well-done or not, are definitely needed for future use in both the home and in industry.

In shop classes their ideas become realities

I don't know—it just doesn't work out. Do you think I could be doing something wrong?

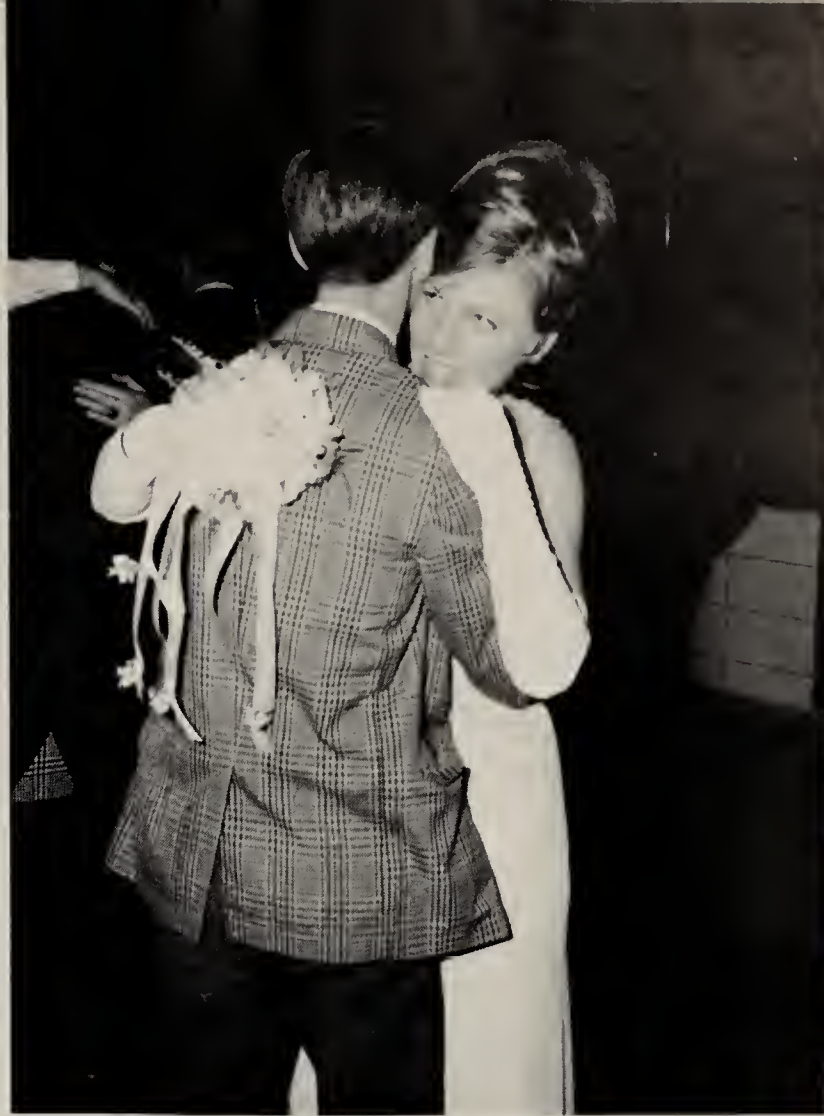

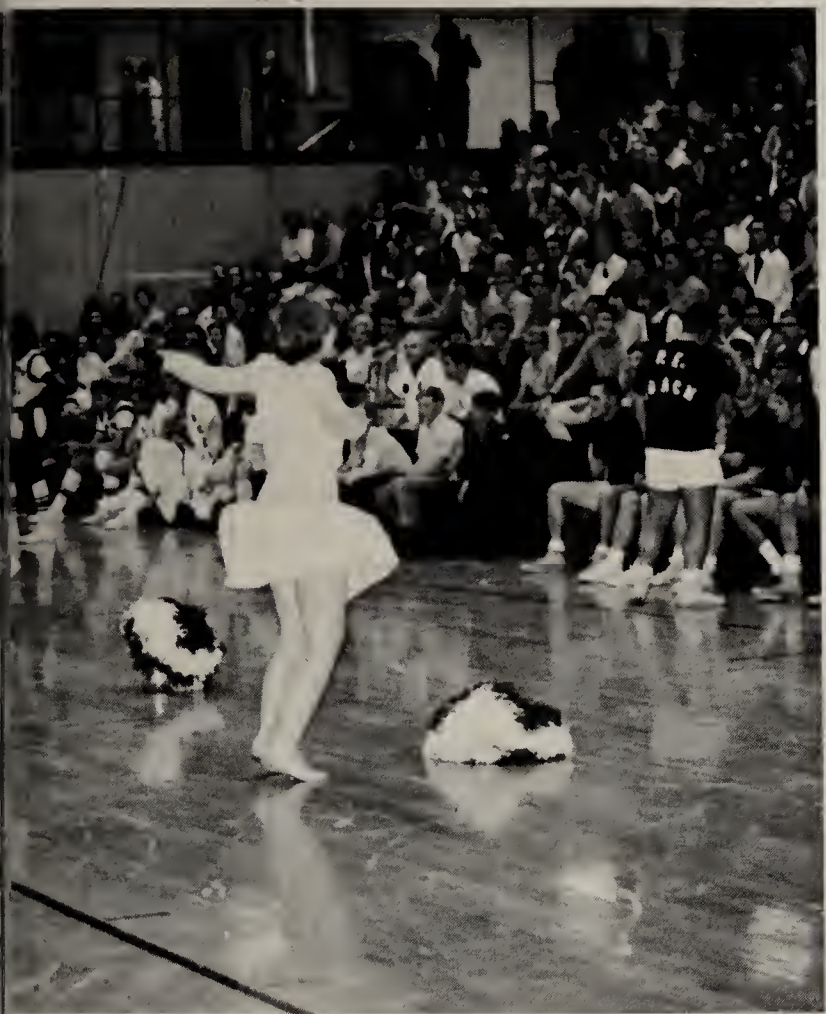

"Hey, you guys, where does this thing fit?"

1968-69 Student Council reaches highest peak

All Concordia Student Councils prove to be a great asset to the link between administration and student body. Through the efforts of this year's council a new schedule has been attempted, student involvement with faculty has reached its peak, and school spirit has risen.

The council is divided up into five committees. They are: The Social, Spirit, Activities, Financial Affairs, and the Church Citizenship, and Civic Affairs Committees. Each has played a vital role in the development of Concordia Lutheran High School.

This half of the Student Council consists of class presidents, club representatives, and committee heads.

The 1968-1969 Student Council leaders are: John Paul, Treasurer, Karen Stelzer, Secretary, John Schoedel, Vice-President, and Jim Stein, President.

These are the homeroom elected representatives who faithfully attend the Student Council meetings every Monday.

All National Honor Society members are honored by being allowed to wear the annual National Honor Society stoles.

National Honor Society & Gamma Rho Delta

Senior students, who are in the top 15% of their class, make up the National Honor Society. This year there are thirty members chosen according to their scholastic ability in citizenship, academic achievement, and service to their school.

Gamma Rho Delta, the honorary literary society, consists of Juniors & Seniors highly trained in the field of literature. During the course of the year, members attend many theatrical performances and at the end of the year combine their talents to form a literary magazine.

Gamma Rho Delta has been very active this year in trying to interest their fellow students in the field of literature appreciation.

Mr. Henke pleads with his choir, but he can't seem to get the volume up past a dull roar.

Training chorus; training

The 120 members of the training chorus enriched many of our chapel services throughout the year.

Sing unto Him a song;
play with a loud noise

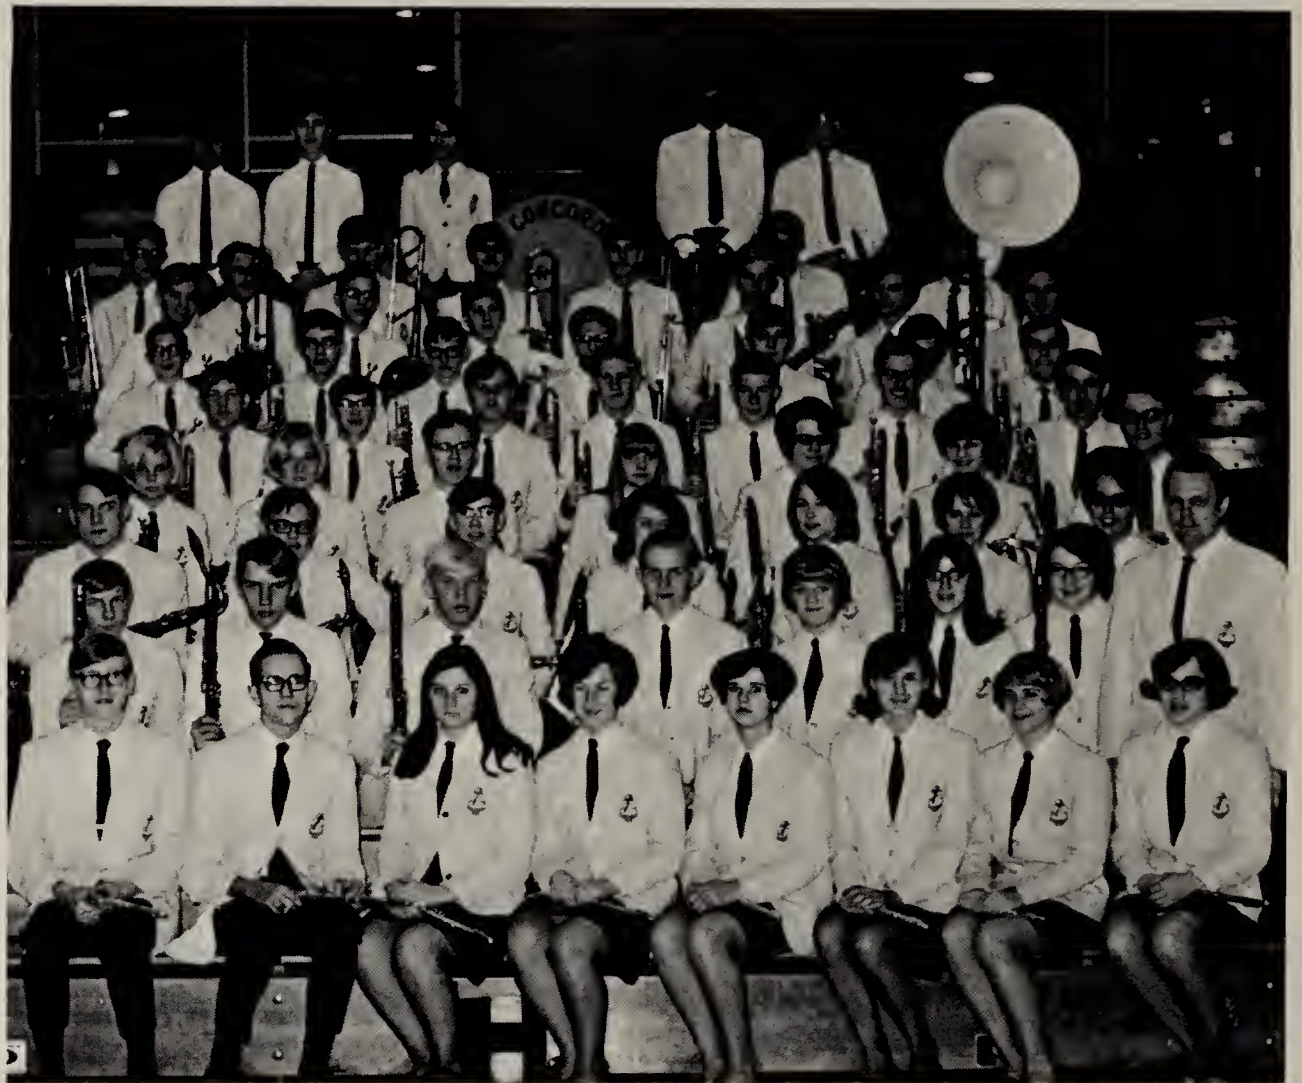

A service to our Saviour, self, and community—this is the specific purpose of our choral groups at Concordia. The “A Cappella” Choir numbers 127 and is administered by a fine group of student officers: Kim Koehlinger, president; Steve Ford, vice-president; Lynda Beukema, secretary; Beth Breininger, treasurer. The training chorus is a major facility in our chapel services.

Instrumental music is an inspiration for all

The band again this year has kept football and basketball games lively, and if you listened carefully, it occasionally added to your first hour class. The orchestra is a small but talented group that deserves more recognition than it receives. Both groups are under the direction of Mr. Ray Sievert.

These students took the opportunity to display their musical talents through the Varsity Band.

Our orchestra members are students having ability with orchestra instruments and interested wind and percussion players.

The brass ensemble produces a mellow sound and is a very successful group.

Another small section of the band is the woodwind ensemble, which plays primarily in worship settings.

Learning perfection is goal for musicians

A lot of hard work and ambition are what these talented musicians have. After and during school, hours of practice are required to attain the perfection needed to perform for church services and other activities throughout the area.

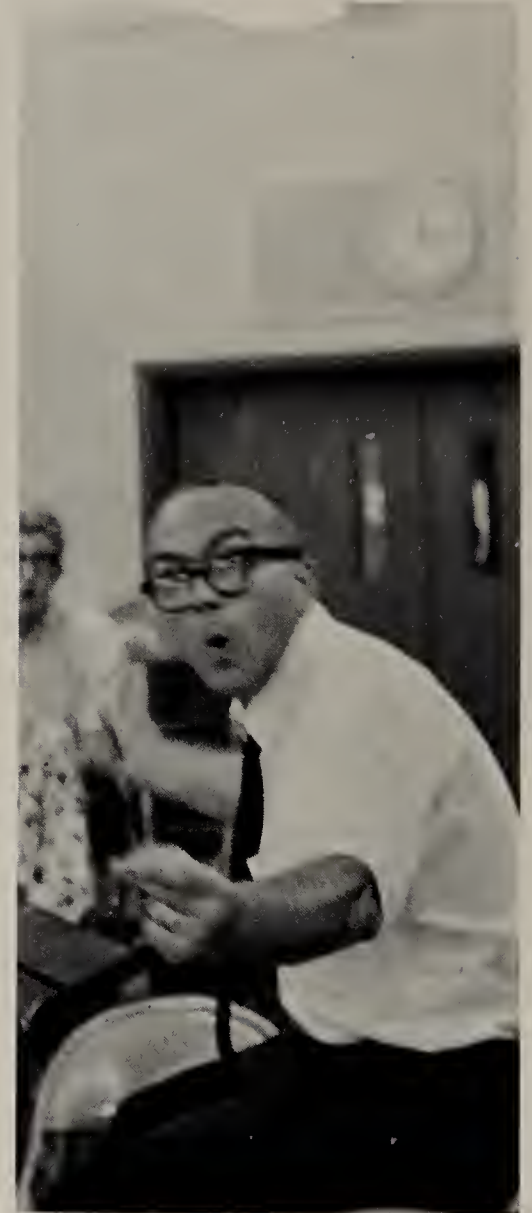

The Cadet Band prepares so that they can eventually enter the Varsity Band.

In the Cadet Band, freshmen develop the fundamentals of band skills.

The Concordia Swingers sang for many benefits, public performances, chapel services, and greatly added much to CLHS' music department with their many talents.

Swing and sing with small group and Stage Band

The daily echoing of music through the halls reminds students of two of the outstanding groups at Concordia. Both the swingers and stage band rate a first place in everyone's heart.

They find not only enjoyment in being together, but in serving.

Christian fellowship: main goal of religion club

Religion Club benefits those students interested in Christ's ministry to others. Through such activities as visiting churches, assisting the high school, and service projects, this club helps to make well-rounded individuals for the world of tomorrow.

The Religion Club officers feel that the purpose of the club can be found in His loving out-stretched arms.

"That's the right way to fix those hymnals, Arlene," Sandy says.

Freshmen don't stay green very long after Freshman Drill practice begins.

Dressed up for a special service or when dressing down a raw freshman, the officers are a commanding sight.

Military clubs add polish to Concordia High

For a cadet interested in military above and beyond the classroom, special groups demanding special talents have formed. An expert marksman can join the Rifle Team; a steady gait and quick hands are needed for Snap Squad. Even freshmen display their marching ability in the Freshman Drill Team.

The Precision Drill Team practices while a band of fans watch admiringly.

The Drum and Bugle Corps is new this year, but already they have added a special touch to military drills.

Girls know how to march! Don't they?

The ultimate in precision and skill—Snap Squad.

The language scholars who provide the leadership for our language clubs are: D. Breininger, V. Wadewitz, C. Dolan.

Mr. Beutow, Mr. Falkenstern, Mr. Ramm head their respective clubs.

The younger of these Latin scholars are made slaves for the older at the annual banquet. Officers are: Jim Nevels, Barb Rossow, Dave Breininger, and Bruce Bolyard.

Language scholars enjoy learning through these clubs

When a club is organized, its founders have a goal in mind. The noble purpose of our language clubs is to further the members' knowledge of their respective countries—and enjoy doing it. Each club's banquet highlights its year with an evening of fun and frivolity—foreign style. Jawohl!

German Club is headed by Veronica Wadewitz, president, Marilyn Gersmehl, secretary. Not pictured are Phil Herzog, treasurer, and Ann Henig, Vice-President.

French club officers are: Carol Dolan, president; Connie Bohren, vice-president; Lynda Beukema, secretary; and Kelli Katt, treasurer.

Work just seems to pile up sometimes in Luminarian class, doesn't it, Karen?

Memories captured in pictures

Many busy minds and hands are involved in preparing for a deadline, as the staff is doing here.

The "talented" editors are: M. Kanning, R. Lantz, K. Rodenbeck, L. Beukema, B. Kamprath, K. Tonne, T. Zwick, D. Foelber.

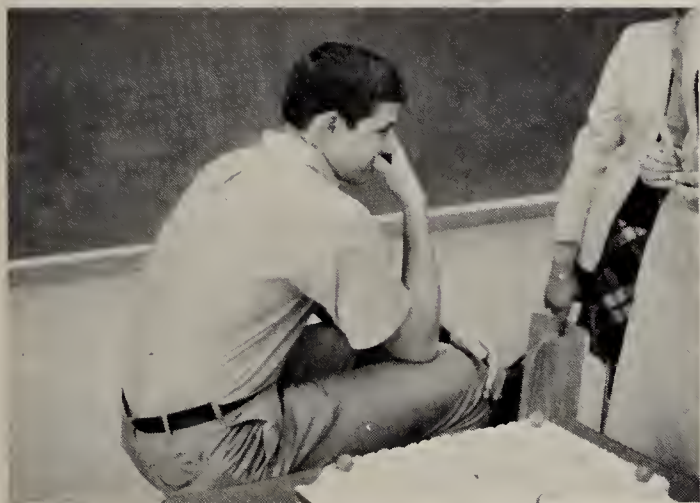

Lynda Beukema, editor, manages the yearbook proficiently.

Another page has finally been completed.

Luminarian: reflection of CLHS' personality and its people

When a student at Concordia hears the word "Luminarian" he thinks of a treasury of moments of a past year captured in pictures, both amusing and solemn. A member of the staff, however, has other reactions toward the yearbook. He thinks of the deadlines that had to be met, the planning, arranging, and finishing of a book that contains the personalities, faces, and events that make Concordia what it is.

The advisors, Mr. Kraemer and Mr. Panning, ably oversee the complicated project of successfully completing the yearbook.

Mr. Kraemer, the advisor, confers with Larry Hoyle, the photographer, about some recent pictures to be entered in the Luminarian.

"Kathy, I told you to get those pages done on time!"

The sharp eyes of editor J. Essig and faculty advisor K. Jordan inspect the finished product. Not much can be done to improve the Lu-Hi.

Always hard to work (as seen here) are our serious and athletic sports writers: D. Gerken, J. Davis, K. Schmidt, and B. Ayers. Another new sport, Karl?

Skill, determination

Imagination and talent are put to use here as Pat and Donna work on a new idea.

L. Johnson, P. Meyer, R. Butler, L. Schaefer, V. Hoerner, D. Russell, and S. Hamula, feature staff, exhibit the paper they're proud of. Why shouldn't they be?

News articles, which keep CLHS students informed of happenings around school, are written by D. Miller, K. Rubel, B. Breining, M. Dehmlow, L. Witte, T. Holmes, D. Seddlemeyer, M. Gersmehl, K. Stlezer, R. Wiegman, and S. Gugel.

Imagination, enthusiasm-Lu-Hi voice

A voice, not an echo—that's the Lu-Hi Voice. Constantly changing, constantly improving, our school paper functions to inform. Editor Jim Essig and his creative staff, under Mr. Kurt Jordan's watchful eye, not only write informative articles, but original poems for the popular Cadet Cutie. Skill, determination, imagination, and enthusiasm make your reporters what they are—great.

The editors, K. Schmidt, J. Essig, B. Shroeder, S. Bostelman, D. Miller, and L. Schaefer, and Mr. Jordan, pause in their work to read the latest issue.

R. Wiegman sneaks in a game of checkers while waiting for another interesting assignment.

Hardworking Drama Club members are most active during show-time.

Thespian talent is easily found in drama club

Behind every Drama Club production goes a lot of hard work, contributed by each of the committees—sets, props, make-up, publicity, costumes. All have a great deal to do for each play. But don't forget the actors without whom our productions would not exist.

Sponsors Mr. Ramm, Mr. Hinkle, and Mr. Graves (not pictured) keep everything under control.

Karl Schmidt discusses an interesting subject.

"A Thurber Carnival" Games for Everybody

"A Thurber Carnival", the fall Drama Club production, was a switch from the ordinary "three-acter" in that it contained a series of twelve short scenes. Two word dance sketches began and wrapped up the play.

Roving reporter Donna Russel questions hermit Jack Davis concerning his life on the lonely tropical island.

Y-Teens is fun, fashion, and fellowship

Y-Teens is a girls' organization sponsored by Mrs. Meyer and Mrs. Ayres. It stems from the YWCA and is brought into the school to bring girls together in fellowship, religion, and just plain fun.

Y-Teens meet on a regular schedule to discuss various activities, including dances and other fund-raising ideas.

The sponsor and officers of Y-Teens are Mrs. Meyer, Sue Ayers, Sue Beusching, Roberta Wiegman, Kathy Cheever, Cheryl Blondell, and Pam Waikel.

JRC cheerfully serves our community

The Junior Red Cross is a student organization chiefly interested in serving the community. This year the JRC has been involved in bake sales, clothing collections, and many other service projects.

JRC girls are always smiling because they enjoy helping the community.

JRC officers are Bonnie Kiel, Lois Rinaker, Debbie Macke, and Nan Mahlock.

P. Meilke, J. Davis, and J. Groth finalize Christmas Dance decorations.

The officers and Mr. Grabowski look over a scrapbook of club activities.

These students, hard at work with the Christmas Card production, are the members of the CASC.

Students contribute talents to school

Concordia's Art Service Club, for anybody and everybody who is willing to give of his time and art talent, is for the purpose of decorating and helping the school. This year their projects have been making and selling Christmas cards, and decorating the gym for various school activities.

Diligent workers try their hardest to make the Christmas Dance the most beautiful yet.

Avid curiosity in the unknown keeps the Biology Club thriving.

Biology clubs discover all inside and out

The biology clubs offer an extra measure of excitement. Dissection is the main activity of both groups. The Advanced Biology Club, open to students who have completed the regular biology course, enjoys taking field trips.

The Advanced Biology Club members with pleasure, recalling all those dissected messes they have made.

High interest is evident in the large attendance at meetings of Y.A.F.

Y.A.F. group strives to better teen image

Mari Gersmehl encourages students to join Y.A.F. and show the community patriotic teens.

A new club was formed at Concordia this year—Young Americans for Freedom. This is a national organization composed of concerned teens who are trying to show our country the good side of youth.

The officers hoped to bring William Buckley to Concordia during the membership drive.

Interest in computers met by computer club

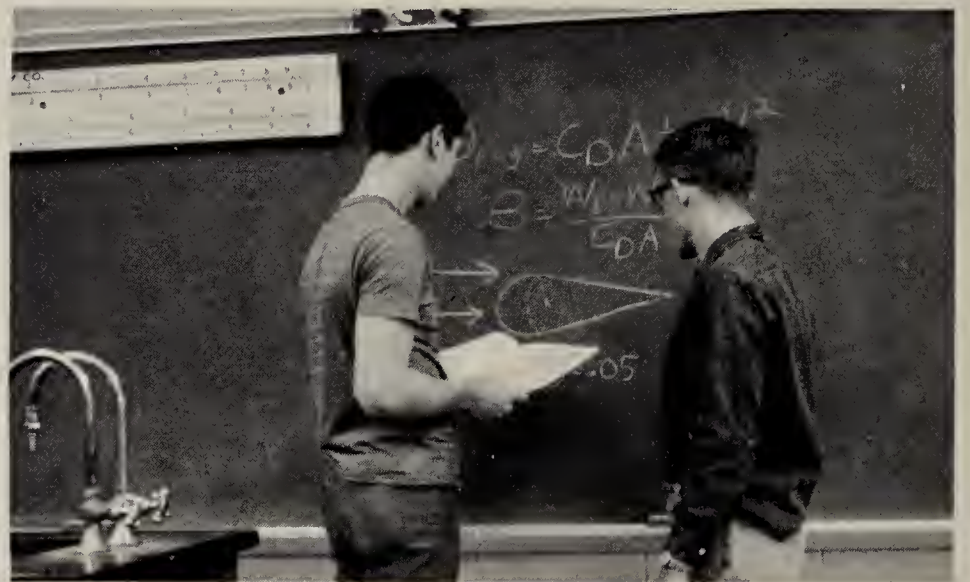

Under the direction of Mr. Gayer the members of Computer Club get a glimpse at and a chance to participate in the fascinating world of computers learning both to write programs for them and to understand their limitations.

Computer Club members find out about their subject through Mr. Gayer, the club's advisor.

Tomorrow's astronauts in today's rocket club

Well, it's up, up, and away again not in a yellow balloon; but in a rocket set off by the Model Rocket Club. Although the club is only in its second year, it is starting it out with a real blast off (in more ways than one).

Who knows, maybe these boys will set off the next rocket to the moon.

Fellowship for boys: the main goal of FCA

The Federation of Christian Athletes, FCA, is a part of a nation-wide group of athletes who recognize the special opportunities given to the athlete for witnessing. The FCA supplies the programs for Concordia's major sporting events.

FCA officer's gather around President Joel Tews as he reads a sports article to be discussed at the next club meeting.

They find a common interest in making athletics at Concordia the best anywhere.

To serve and improve Concordia: a motto which key club follows

The Key Club has undertaken numerous projects to serve the school and improve it. They contributed their spirit by the continuance of the sale of Concordia license plates and by acquiring the wood for the Homecoming bonfire.

Relaxing, the members of Concordia's service club find out about their next project.

"Guys, it's like this. Key Club finally beat all odds and produced a superb bonfire for Homecoming."

Twirler performances enhance game half-times

Half-time entertainment at many of the season's athletic events is provided by the Concordia twirlers, led by head majorette, Carol Dolan. The difficult art of baton twirling requires skill and coordination, possessed in great quantity by the 68-69 twirlers.

Girls' excitement and exercise

Whether basketball or tumbling, GAA gals prove their athletic ability. Advised by Mrs. Elizabeth Obermueller, this organization highlights the year with a reverse hayride and awards banquet. It all adds up to a year of exercise and fun.

And Number 88 takes off with ease.

Just an example of our enthusiastic, athletic girls.

Not for glory— it's just for fun

Guys not only play to win on intramural teams; but they show true sportsmanship while releasing energy, proving great skill, and cooperating together in such sports as volleyball, bowling, and basketball.

The Concordia Cadets are cheered to victory by the five varsity cheerleaders: Pat Meyer, Phyllis Schmidt, Sue Schorey, Chris Bredemeyer, and Terri Zwick.

One of the favorite cheers of the student body is chanted to the tune of "Across the Field". Leading the students are Terri Zwick and Pat Meyer.

Concordia's vivacious

A Concordia cheerleader has to be made of pep, vivacity, boundless energy, and, yes, cheer. Her dazzling smile must sustain our school spirit at its highest possible peak to lift the team's morale and cheer it on to victory.

One of the most efficient pep organizations is the fabulous Concordia High School cheer block.

An occupational hazard of cheerleading is the bitter cold of winter football. Snuggled in the teams' jackets are C. Bredemeyer, L. Witte, and P. Schmidt.

Cheerleaders put spark into cadet victory

The sophomore reserve team also needs the encouragement of our peppy reserve cheerleaders. They are: Karen Dammeyer, Lucy Witte, Mary French, Beth Meyer, and Kelli Katt.

The great freshman basketball team is cheered to victory by Sarah Swehn, Cindy Nix, Tracee Zwick, Judy Dieckman, and Cathy Nieter.

“Election year” theme for 1969 CLHS Homecoming

Using an election theme, this year's homecoming was fully as perfect as those of the past years. The court, lead by Patti Meyer, consisted of Terri Zwick, Sue Schorey, Chris Bredemeyer, and Karen Stelzer. Following the football game with Garrett, fireworks, bonfire, and float competition, Queen Patti Meyer was crowned at the dance.

With a radiant smile for everyone, lovely Patti Meyer ruled over her 1968-69 Homecoming Court.

"Every athletic team has a coach and Charley horses to pull it."

Our '68 gridgers were spurred on by the leadership and spirit of co-captains, Frank Hayes and Eric Taylor.

Up, up and away!

The "BIG PUSH"

'68 team shows determined spirit

Employing much hard work and grueling practice, Coach Larry Goeglein molded and inspired inexperienced Cadets into a smooth-working team. Individual efforts sparked the performance of our fearless gridmen in the face of tough competition.

Powerhouse Joel Tews drives with lightning speed to the right end for a first down.

Eager to be given an opportunity to demonstrate their abilities, the members of the varsity basketball team opened the season with exploding and scintillating performances. Although hampered by early-season injuries, the '69 cagers unleashed a well-balanced and spirited attack which allowed them to quickly gain several narrow-margin victories. Lead in scoring by Eric Taylor, the Cadets compiled a creditable record, highlighting mid-season play with four straight wins, including an unbelievable thriller over Central Catholic. Guided by coach Glenn Parrish, two-time winner of the coach-of-the-week award, the Cadet hoopsters enthusiastically charged into Sectional action, completing their season against North Side in the semi-finals.

The spirited reserve and freshman basketball teams, coached by Mr. Reinking and Mr. Pinnow, sought to gain the experience and fundamentals necessary for tense varsity action. The reserves suddenly sparked for several late-season victories while the freshmen, ably battling on the boards, compiled a successful 12-8 record.

If it doesn't fall off his fingers, Bill Gerke will score on a layup.

Coach "wild Bill" Ihssen seems to experience the struggle he watches as he enthusiastically calls for more "fight".

Concordia's wrestling team, once again, ably coached by Mr. Ihssen, finished another successful season on the mats. Though it was a rebuilding year, Cadet grapplers competed excellently against stronger area foes. Significant contributors to the overall achievement of the team, and tremendous leaders, were Co-Captains Joel Tews and Gary Gotsch.

The fine attitude, spirit and drive which they displayed throughout the season stimulated the remainder of the team to duplicate their performances. Joel, who led the team in pins took top honors in the Ft. Wayne sectional. Gary also placed first in the sectional and second in regional competition. Also boasting excellent records were Bob Sommer and Steve Shaw.

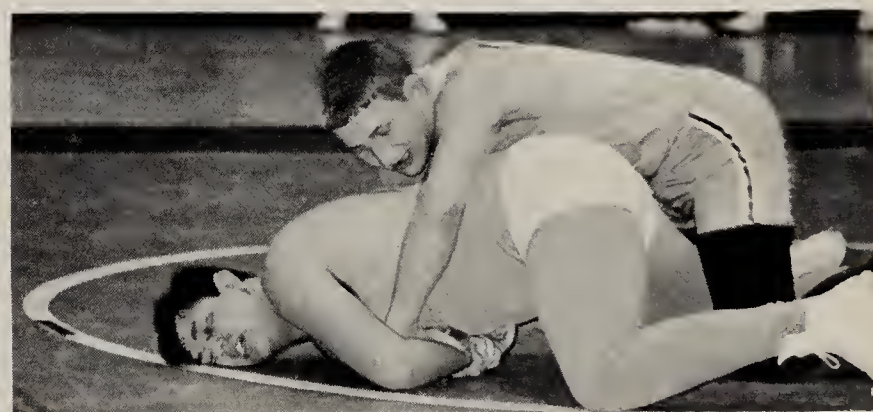

What kind of hold is that?

Golf team "irons out" competition

Dave Fenimore uses a 3-iron to put his ball on the green.

Steve Schueler lines up his ball and gets into a correct stance.

Doug Zirzow follows his line drive 200 yards down the fairway. His smooth style is a compliment to the team.

Golf is...the green, tee, stroke, iron, chip, par, drive, putt, sandtrap, bogey, turf, fairway, sunshine, and enjoyment...all a part of a fascinating and intriguing sport. Under the watchful eye of Coach Buetow, this year's young golf team was able to excell on area courses. Lead by Dave Schueler, Dave Fenimore, and Doug Zirzow, the Cadets developed expert precision and sportsmanship.

Coach Buetow studies a list of golf hopefuls and decides who has the potential to make the team.

Quick reactions and skilled rackets make Tom Dannenfelser and Tony Wolf a formidable pair.

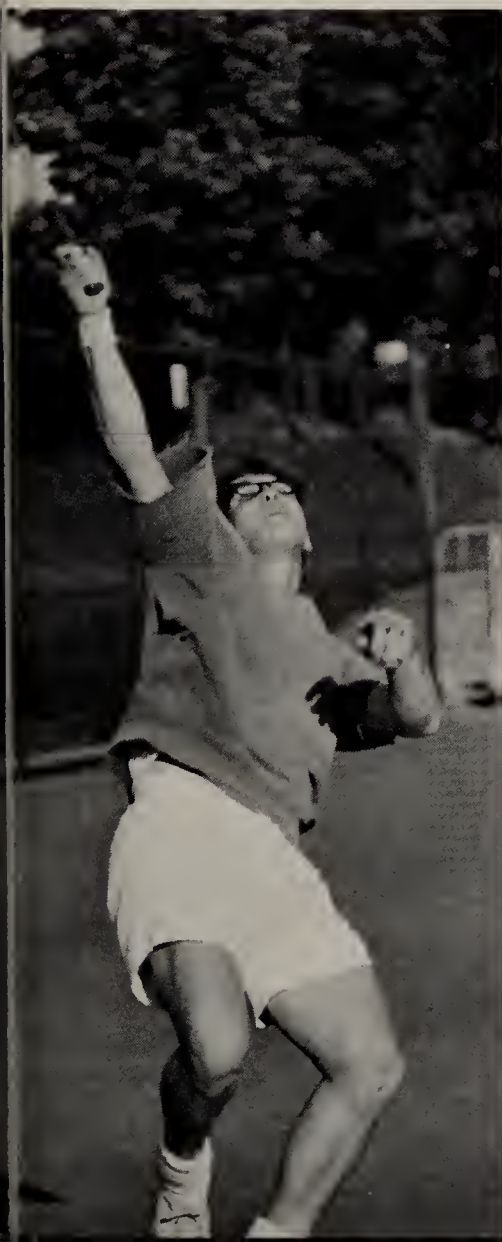

Tennis team makes great strides in '68

With one returning senior, John Paul, the tennis team once again made great strides. Having their first fall season, Coach Buetow's nimble netmen, through the stress and strain of endless practice, vigorously battled their way to within one match of the city championship.

Men on diamond “outshine” rivals

With the advent of warm spring weather, the resounding “crack” of bats and stinging “thud” of ball gloves, quite regularly pierces the air, as Cadet diamondmen ready themselves for a typically good season. Baseball builds endurance and character as individuals accept the challenge to perfect their own skills. This year stiff NEIC competition molded them into a well-organized and offensively, explosive team. Coaches Massucci and Anderson directed the powerful Cadet hitters and pitchers to obtain a commendable record.

Bruce Berning gets set to hurl a “burning” curve ball. Chances are that it will strike out the batter.

Coach Massuci chose a well-balanced team from this large and enthusiastic group of candidates.

So we've made it
through the year—
so we've made it
through four years—
So what?

The education we've sought
can be applied.
The friends we've gained
can be appreciated.
The experiences we've tasted
can be recalled.
The mistakes we've made
can be forgotten.
We're entering a new year—
free for discovery. . .
The initiative is ours
So what?

"You say you missed the deadline????"

Lois,

How can I ever forget these
 "past ~~four~~ ^{three} years in our "stupendous" car pools? (Whoops made a mistake there - its only been three). It sure has been great having you as a friend and neighbor with whom I enjoyed having confidential talks and chats. Remember the problems we had before the prom, and to look back they seem so insignificant.
 Wasn't it just great, though, how they turned out? (I mean getting to go to the prom and all). I know fun times await us this summer - that is if we aren't working too hard. (HA! HA!)
 Good luck and God bless in the future.

THE MOON and beyond

Bright, new horizons await today's students. . .
 new technologies. . . new advancements on all fronts
 . . . even the moon and whatever lies beyond.

How far you go in this space age depends partly on your imagination but primarily on your education and training. Conquering new horizons will demand more of today's graduates—more knowledge, more skills, more training and more specialization.

Our Free Enterprise system, with its high living standards, gives you an opportunity to "shoot for the moon" in any field. Whether or not your target is reached depends on how well trained you are to launch your career.
